Questions about the curriculum so far?

Ask them in the chat.

Next up we will talk about how to use this curriculum in various settings.

Ideal for...

- Small congregations with wide age gaps in Sunday school
- Mid-size and large congregations that want to take advantage of the benefits of mixed age groupings
- Weeknight program or children's Bible study
- Congregations that would like to use intergenerational ideas
- Summer Sunday school
- Churches to create a library of customizable units

How to use Online

- Read the story Bible over a video chat
- Focus more on the wondering questions in the Engage and Wrestle sections and less on the activities.
- Use the internet activities and videos that can be shared
- Use activities that incorporate picture books you can read aloud or watch a video together
- Select intergenerational activities that can be done at home with siblings and caregivers

How to use at Home

- Encourage older siblings and younger siblings to work together on activities. Or, better yet, work together as a family! The conversation and activities work well in a small group setting.
- Have a child is comfortable reading, read the story aloud to the whole family, or take turns reading and asking the Act, See, and Hear ideas at the end of the story.
- Use the intergenerational and home activities. Encourage older children or youth to make activities more challenging in a way that interests them.
